PROSPECT LEAGUE ANNOUNCES EXPANSION FOR 2010 SEASON

Chillicothe, Ohio – It was announced today that The Prospect League will expand from eleven to fourteen teams for the 2010 playing season. Joining the league as new members will be the Dekalb County Liners, the Terre Haute Rex and the West Virginia Miners.

The Dekalb County Liners will play at Founder's Field, located in Sycamore Park in Sycamore, Illinois.

The Terre Haute Rex will play at Sycamore Field on the campus of Indiana State University in Terre Haute, Indiana.

The West Virginia Miners will play in the Linda K. Epling Stadium in Beckley, West Virginia.

“The Prospect League is extremely proud to announce the addition of three new members for the 2010 season” said League President Bryan Wickline. “All three new teams will bring great facilities and ownership to the Prospect League. We are honored to approve these Members and look forward to helping them bring an outstanding summer baseball program to their communities.”

Watch for more details on each of these new teams soon on ProspectLeague.com.
